AMI Analyst Passes Level II CFA Examination

Kendallville, Ind., July 26, 2010 – David J. Manger, analyst at AMI Investment Management, passed the second of three examinations for the Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) Program. The CFA Program is a graduate-level self-study program that requires candidates to master a rigorous curriculum focused on finance-related topics. According to The Economist, the CFA designation has become the "gold standard" of professional credentials within the global investment community and is roughly equivalent to a specialized master's degree in finance.

Michael D. Axel, CFA, founder and president of AMI Investment Management, received his CFA designation in 1994. Jacob D. Benedict, associate at AMI, has successfully completed all three examinations required for the CFA charter and will be eligible for the CFA designation upon completion of the required work experience.
